

MongoDB is a document database that stores records as BSON documents.

A collection is a group of related MongoDB documents.

A document contains field and value pairs and is similar to a JSON object.

An index helps MongoDB find matching documents more efficiently.

A query specifies the documents that MongoDB should return.